The global aim of the TRL Translators Community: to emulate the success of the most translated document in history, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, in terms of the quantity of languages it has been translated into.

200+ Local Coordinators in every country

Global aim: to maintain up-to-date information for more than 200 countries relating to the following areas

- The membership of international and regional organizations
- The fulfilment and/or violation of international treaties at a universal and regional level
- The national application of ‘Soft Law’ instruments
- The implementation of recommendations and rulings given by international and regional judicial and quasi-judicial bodies, including the committees of UN Treaty Bodies, as well as statements and recommendations made by UN Special Rapporteurs
- The exact figures for the basic income of every country as per the Token of Peace algorithms

3) “Memorandum of Understanding”

Within the framework of the TRL MOU, preliminary agreements are made between the TRL Global Foundation and partners, who share the values of humanism and rights and freedoms, as well as the implementation and development of Economics.

The directors of the various TRL Alliance departments assist in concluding memorandums with those organizations that work within their spheres of responsibility.

4) TRL Alliance: Global Research Community

- 3 coordinators + assistants in the following departments: Humanism; Rights and Liberties; Economics
- 12 Association Coordinators [focusing on religion, gender and racial equality; global inequality and poverty; migration; civic engagement; journalists & activists; Economy 4.0]
- 2 Special Department Coordinators: Space Industry; Medicine (Health Care)

Performance evaluation criteria:

1. Tracking and analyzing major changes (including negative consequences) to aspects of life for all humanity due to the emergence of the TRL algorithms
2. The global improvement of the situation in the accountable areas according to independent reports, as well as the overall increase in TRL Rate, not in the short term, but in the long term.

5) Registration of the organization in multiple jurisdictions and the conclusion of an MOU with the local authorities in the area in which it will be registered.

What makes our project stand out is the incredible level of support that volunteers across the world are willing to show:

- We have already translated more than 100 000 words on a pro bono basis, even though we haven't yet created a freestanding and fully functioning community.
- We would never have calculated the basic income for every country without our “volunteer movement ‘Implementation’”, as this required filling in more than 12 000 values, all of which were contained in 35 UN depositories and tens of international treaties at the universal and regional level, for more than 200 countries.
- The first reviews of the MOU, especially those from the representatives of social entrepreneurship, allow us to come to a conclusion regarding the potentially exclusive success of this enterprise. The Non-Commercial and Mass Media MOUs are a continuation of the originally stated policy of supporting independent journalists; protecting journalists and advocates across the world; increasing civic engagement levels, rights and liberties; and fighting global inequality.

This is why we should not only preserve the volunteer spirit within the project, but also reinforce it by forming a fully-fledged volunteer TRL movement.
